

Privacy Policy

Effective Date: June 2026

Jordan Henderson Real Estate respects your privacy. Information submitted through contact forms, home valuation requests, consultations, or newsletter signups may be used to respond to inquiries, provide real estate services, and share requested market information.

We do not sell your personal information. Information may be shared with trusted service providers necessary to operate our business or as required by law.

This website may use cookies and analytics tools to improve user experience and website performance.

We are committed to the principles of Fair Housing and provide equal professional service to all clients.

For questions regarding this policy, please contact Jordan Henderson Real Estate.